Dubai Airshow has once again underscored Middle East airlines' growing importance in the global air transport marketplace. With a total of 160 Airbus orders and commitments worth US$44 billion, it's a clear evidence that our customers continue to invest and maintain their confidence in the range of Airbus modern aircraft family. With this issue we also celebrate and welcome Libyan Wings among our valuable customers. The airline has chosen Airbus aircraft to build its fleet. It is very exciting to see a new airline starting its business today and we feel privileged to be part of this journey.

Lastly, this issue also marks the first long-term agreement Airbus Foundation has made with a customer airline for goodwill flights. The partnership with Emirates will utilize future A380 deliveries to Emirates in order to transport humanitarian support to the United Nations Humanitarian Response (UNHRD).

Record Dubai Airshow, a great success for Airbus

This year's Dubai Airshow was not only different in many respects but also proved to be a record setting event.

During the week-long show which commenced on November 17th, the world's leading aviation companies alongside many regional firms and organizations descended on the newly built venue adjacent to the Maktoum International Airport (DWC). The 645,000 square meters site features a purpose-built 42,870 square meters exhibition hall - about the size of seven football fields.

The 2013 Dubai Airshow hosted 1,046 exhibitors from 60 countries, which drew a trade attendee intake of 60,692. The order book exceeded US$200 billion with an exact figure of $206.1 billion - bulging with aircraft, parts and MRO deals, in a show that reflected the growing importance of the MENASA region as the world's aviation hub.

The order intake at the airshow by value was our biggest ever in Dubai. Airbus won 160 orders and commitments worth of $44 billion.

By value, Emirates placed the single largest order for Airbus for 50 additional A380s, worth US$20 billion, commending its efficiency and passenger appeal and confirming the A380 flagship status within their fleet.

By numbers, Etihad Airways placed the single largest firm order for Airbus at the show with 87 aircraft (40 A350-900, 10 A350-1000, 26 A321neo, 10 A320neo and one A330-200F) worth US$19 billion at list prices.

This year, like the previous Dubai Airshows, we had a number of Airbus aircraft on static display including Egyptair A330, Emirates A380, Qatar Airways A330 freighter, along with ACJ318 and ACJ319.
